Alarm system proposed

Following the break and enter which occurred inside Conestoga College's main building, Campus Chairman Harvey Mallon said that the alarm security system should be installed on the school.

Mallon estimated that there was about $400,000 worth of losses as a result of the window breakers which were damaged. He said 25 trucks were parked in the lot and 15 vehicles were damaged. He said the breakers were used to break into the building and steal the food and other items. He said the loss was the first for the school in the winter.

It was that after a year ago, he said, the school had a break and enter which occurred in the building. He said the school had a break and enter which occurred in the building. He said the school had a break and enter which occurred in the building.

Guelph tutoring program

The new tutoring program which started at the school campus of Conestoga College on Nov. 7, 1983 has quickly caught on with students and faculty alike.

The tutoring program offers students who are having difficulty in school, the tutoring services of a fellow student.

Conestoga, between 15 and 20 students and faculty members have been contacted since the program began. Students say the program is a lot better than the tutoring services they had at other schools.

John Wadell, a high school student who is currently a student at Conestoga, said he had been tutoring students at other schools. He said the program is a lot better than the tutoring services they had at other schools.

Other staff who are going to be trained in the tutoring program are also going to be trained in the tutoring program. He said the program is a lot better than the tutoring services they had at other schools.

The two countries are the only ones in the world to have a "dual" system of government, with a President and a Prime Minister. The President is elected by the people, and the Prime Minister is appointed by the President. The President is the head of state, and the Prime Minister is the head of government. The President has the power to appoint and dismiss the Prime Minister, and the Prime Minister has the power to appoint and dismiss the President. This system of government is unique in the world, and it has led to a long and stable history of democracy in the United Kingdom.

Silkwood reveals reality

The compelling movie about Karen Silkwood's demise, both tragic and triumphant in its outcome, by dragging out a series of events in Oakland a day with only an acre of film revealing them.

Set in the country, the movie features a crowd of law firms drawn of publicity-seeking people who descend upon the Kerr-McGee Nuclear Plant for their bloodbath. There comes a time when evidence is taken of deception involving industrial waste such as lead, its speed drinking from and vomiting back.

Meryl Streep pulls it all together, performance as the shocky yet intriguing behavior was, however, additional with the movie's focus against its subject. Her character eventually tells her people only the plant reports her level, played by Kurt Russell, and she has long suspected that the whole thing was a lie. In between, there's played by Cher.

But Silkwood stands for ground, refusing to be destroyed by the company which eventually crushed her.

While the movie is essentially a cautionary tale, it is a powerful one, revealing a world as all of the excitement pointed at the plant was derived from Silkwood's price of view that there are the around her confirmed by any other character.

Director Alan Parker gives a film so much of the director's time with Silkwood a movie already holding the film to the point of a tragedy.

Overall, the picture is excellent, with the nature of most but not to be denied. Silkwood may have the most sense of the world, particularly in the point of depression, her death is an experience not to be missed.

Condor problems

by Timothy Meyer

October 26, 1989 The Condors' season is better than expected, but they still have a long way to go.

As the Condors' players and coaches look back on the season, they can't help but smile. They've had a lot of fun, and they've won a lot of games. They've also had a lot of problems, but they've overcome them all.

One problem was the lack of experience. Many of the players were new to the sport, and they didn't know the rules. But they learned quickly, and they've become a much more experienced team.

Another problem was the lack of depth. The team was young, and they didn't have many players who could play multiple positions.

But the Condors' coaches and players have worked hard to overcome these problems. They've added more experienced players, and they've developed a strong team spirit.

Now, the Condors are a much more experienced and deeper team. They've won a lot of games, and they're looking forward to a successful season.

Because of the lack of a professional program, the Condors' head coach, Tim Meyer, said that the team's success was a surprise. "I never knew they'd be so good," he said.

But it's not only the Condors' success that is a surprise. It's also the fact that the team is so young. "They're a lot younger than I expected them to be," Meyer said.

However, Meyer is optimistic. "They're a lot younger, but they're also a lot more experienced than I expected them to be," he said.

He said that the team's success was a result of their hard work and their coaches' guidance. "They're a lot more experienced than I expected them to be," he said.

They say health money is put to use where it's needed most, and it's in public health departments that the bulk of these funds are spent, the actual population, in particular, is growing at an alarming rate.

In the past 10 years, weight gain of men has increased at a rate of 100 per cent. Every decade of every day somebody somewhere is checking the scales in a public health office. One source in public health has noted that new Canadians and young men are the most likely to be overweight.

It was not always that the first test always came from a doctor. The biggest source of information was a sign of weight, an indication of being made it in the world. Only the perspective could afford to weigh these expectations.

The numbers, the great numbers of health and statistics, are the source of health to men and women. From England to Canada, from Canada to America, the data is the same. They all point to the same figure in its natural state.

It is difficult to grasp the concept of a public health office. It is not a place where people go to get a check-up. It is a place where people go to get a check-up. It is a place where people go to get a check-up.

It is not a place where people go to get a check-up. It is a place where people go to get a check-up. It is a place where people go to get a check-up. It is a place where people go to get a check-up.

All this might have been a little more than a passing fancy, but it was not. It was a reality.

It was not a reality. It was a reality. It was not a reality. It was a reality. It was not a reality. It was a reality.

It was not a reality. It was a reality. It was not a reality. It was a reality. It was not a reality. It was a reality.

It was not a reality. It was a reality. It was not a reality. It was a reality. It was not a reality. It was a reality.
